THE VIRGINIA CAMPAIGN.

The Democrats May Be Troubled by Their Silver Plank.

Populists Claim to Be Glad of O'Fer rall's Nomination-The Fight for the United States Senatorship.

Special Dispatch to the Evening Star.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 25.-The usua rienced in Virginia politics. The leaders of the contending parties, however, are mar-shaling their forces for the decisive fight. Both the democrats and populists are now making elaborate arrangements for the opening of the campaign, which will occur in a very short time. All of the democrats are rapidly falling in line for Col. O'Ferrall for governor now since he has won the nomination. It was feared that some of the Tyler and Buford men would be disgruntled, but if they are they are remaining silent on the subject. Most of the democrats are also satisfied with the platform formulated by the recent state convention It is true, however, that many of the rural delegates would have been better satisfied with a flat-footed declaration for free coin-with a flat-footed declaration for free coinage. There is a strong free silver sentiment in Virginia, especially in Tidewater, and the democratic leaders will encounter some difficulty in whipping into line this element for the "straddle" plank adopted by the state convention.

Senator Daniel's silver speech before the body has been severely criticised by some of the members present, many of them calling it absurd. The Times calls him to task for his theories and styles them amazing fallacies.

Will Fight on Silver. The populists will make their fight in this campaign almost entirely upon the silver question; at least they will make it the leading issue in the fight. Next to this they will devote most attention to the record of Col. O'Ferrall, whom they will hold up as Col. O'Ferrall, whom they will hold up as the administration candidate. The letters written by Alexander and others before the convention, detrimental to the colonel, are already being freely issued against him by the populists. In the matter of stumpers, however, the democrats have a very decided advantage over their opponents. Many of the leading democratic Congressmen have consented to run down here from Washington and make speeches. Bourke Cockran and many other brilliant campaign orators are being counted upon.

Hill and O'Ferrall. No one seems to know the origin of the report that Senator Hill endeavored to de-feat Col. O'Ferrall's nomination. It was reported here immediately after the conven-tion that the New York Senator had his friends at work in the interest of Tyler, purely to avenge himself for the now famous stand taken by Col. O'Ferrall in the last Congress, when he announced on the floor of the House that he was for Cleveland for President, comparing him to a lion and Hill to a fox. This charge, however, is not sustained by an analysis of the result in the late convention. The strongest O'Ferrall districts were those which last year sent solid delegations to the state convention for Hill for President. These were the second, fourth, fifth and sixth. They were carried by O'Ferrall with the same unanimity that they were by Hill last year. Then, too, some of the most conspicuous. Hill leaders in Virginia were the champions of O'Ferrall in this fight, beginning with State Chairman Ellyson and ending with Capt. Ham Sheppard, the latter recently appointed by Mr. Cleveland collector of the western district. friends at work in the interest of Tyler, circumstances," he says, "give my enemies an opportunity to charge that I was avoiding my responsibility in this matter." The contest for Col. O'Ferrall's seat in Congress is indeed a lively one. The district committee will in a few days call a convention for some date in September at which the nominee will be chosen. It is said that Basil B. Gordon, the late state chairman, could have had the place, but he has declined it owing to the very poor condition of his health. Among the aspirants are the following: Mecatah Woods of Albemarie, S. S. Turner of Worden, A. Moore, fr. of Carke, M. L. Walton of Shenandoah, George Perkins of Albemarie and probably several others.

The race for the United States senatorship is now assuming interesting phases. The determination of Gov. McKinney to enter the race for the long term adds new interest to the fight. The governor, it is said, will have the support of nearly all of the porminent leaders of his forces in the campaign that resulted in his nomination for the porminent leaders of his forces in the campaign that resulted in his nomination for the governorship four years aro. It seems to be the impression now that Senator Hunton will be elected to serve out the unexpired term of the late Senator Farbour, and that Gen. Fitz Lee has the lead for the long term, but is being closely pressed by the will Thomas S. Martin of Albemarle. Notwithstanding the damaging break made by "our Fitz" in greating the democratic convention here to indorse the mythical Grover II, he will be a most formildable candidate. Little Grover, though, will stick to him trough the canwass. Ever since the general's mistake his life has been a burden to him, for far and near he has been joked about it.

The opening of the democratic campaign will be attended by much ceremony. Col. Cleared here and the campaign will be attended by much ceremony. Col. Cleared the cattender of the democratic campaign will be attended by much ceremony. Col.

The opening of the democratic campaign will be attended by much ceremony. Col. O'Ferrall believes in making a good showing on the start, and is now said to be formulating plans for an interesting pyrotechnic display of oratory to set the democratic ball to rolling. The present program is for the candidate for governor to open the fight in Tidewater; Maj. R. C. Kent, the candidate for lieutenant governor. In the southwest, and Maj. R. Taylor Scott, the candidate for attorney general, in the valley. Each of these candidates will remain in their respective fields until the ground is thoroughly covered. This arrangement, of course, may be altered to suit the exigencies of the time.

The populist leaders, on the other hand, are preparing for a vigorous campaign and profess confidence in the success of their ticket. A populist leader in speaking of the democratic ticket and platform to me said: "The ticket is not likely to create enthusiasm among the farmers and the platform, when dissected by the people's party orators, will disgust the masses of the people with democracy." He admitted that the agriculturists could find no fault with Mr. Kent, but the lieutenant governor was merely a figurehead and an officer of rolimportance. The gentleman further declared that his party preferred the nomination of Col. O'Ferrall to any man that could be put up. They recognized the fact that while he had very warm friends, he had as many bitter enemies as any man in the party, and these latter, if supporting him at all, would do so in such a coldly formal manner that it would do the candidate more harm than good.

back into old history. He would go back only to October, 1891, when Mr. Bynum of Indiana. Mr. Black of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Wilson of West Virgina were advertised to make a tour through the country for the purpose of organizing democratic clubs.

How warmly the people of Denver had treated these gentlemen! They had been treated to bed and board. Then the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Bynum) had addressed the largest audience that had ever assembled in Denver. In the Rocky Mountain News was a stenographic report of his speech, in which he said: "I have always been in favor of the free coinage from the time the question has been before Congress, and I will do so every time the question comes up." (Laughter and applause.)

FRANK APPLEBY'S SUICIDE

He Shoots Himself in Druid Hill Park,

Baltimore.

He is Well Known-Reasons for the Beed

Mr. Frank Appleby, son of the late Win M. Appleby of Georgetown, and a civil en-gineer by profession, shot himself yesterday in Druid Hill Park, Baltimore, with a 22-caliber revolver, only one chamber of which had been loaded.

The wound inflicted did not prove imme Noted venerables tell of their habits and modes of life.

The wound infinited did not prove immediately fatal, and Mr. Appleby was taken in the patrol to the Maryland Hospital. There he died about 5 o'clock. His name was learned through a stamp on his clothes. The hospital authorities notified the dead man's friends in Georgetown, and Mr. James Appleby, the pharmacist, its brother, went on, identified the remains, and gave preliminary instructions for their been fired in the presence of several men and women.

Deceased was born and reared in Georgetown, but the past eight or nine years have been spent with engineering parties in Texas, Colorado and Oregon, constructing bridges and surveying for railroads. He, it is said, was a ruan of considerable ability and successfully accomplished many difficult engineering feats.

Some of the bridges built under his supervision are said to be the finest in the west. Often he had a thousand men under him. A short time ago, though, work became slack in the west and he came here and secured a position under the government in the engineer department. To his uncle, Dr. J. F. R. Appleby, with whom he tafked three days ago, deceased said that an attempt was being made to "oust." him from his position, and this may have praved upon his mind until it became unbalanced. No other cause for the deed could be assigned by the doctor at the time the reporter talked to him, he having heard nothing of the said affair.

At the residence of the dead man's mother, 1511 33d street, no information would be given out by those who were consoling the grief-stricken parent, and she was so prostrated as to be unable to talk. Mr. Appleby was about thirty-five years of age, unmarried and usually of a bright discussion. Funeral arrangements will be made today. It is thought that deceased went to Baltimore in the hope of securing the influence of a Senator to retain him in his position.

POPULIST SENATORS.

They Want Free Coinage at the Prescat Ratio or Nothing.

Two of the Senators of the populist party spoke yesterday on the silver question. If they are determined to hold to the position which they took yesterday it will be some time before the body of which they are members will be able to repeal the Sherman law unless something as a substitute is provided.

The Beard of Trade Convention.

Alex. D. Anderson, chairman of committee of arrangements for the comm man law unless something as a substitute is provided.

After the report of The Star closed Mr. Peffer continued his remarks. He expressed himself in favor of free coinage at the present ratio. He wanted this or nothing. He argued that it was the government.
